“ Every once in a great while we are fortunate enough to meet someone who, although we've only known them a short while, feels like we've known each other for years. This was my experience with Andrew. Although I only met him a couple of years ago, I count it my great pleasure to have counted him as a friend. And Man, could he cook some Oxtails! To the entire Toney family, I'm praying for you daily that the Lord will provide his comforting spirit as that is really the only thing I know of that will get you through these hard times. Know that grief is a normal outlet for loss but, when you get a feeling of deep despair that may have you questioning yourself or even God, that that is an evil spirit and you can cast those thoughts from your mind in the name of Jesus.
