“ Ms. Washington
Your light shines bright when walking in. You helped me, someone you barely knew at first. You give when you can, so generous. When I tried to refuse your help you insist. You said, “Girl!!! Don’t you be blocking my blessings!” Yes ma’am, you I respect. You didn’t want a reward, that’s the Lord our Savior within. To come to work while you’re sick sick so much courage. You are the true definition of fight ‘til the end. I got to know you and love you this past year. When I came to say hello to you, you had the biggest grin. I consider you my friend, my work grandma. You were so sweet to me and I know that God was your strength. You came to work to service others. You are loved by your co-workers, and you are a wonderful mother. You touched my heart I’m so thankful I met you. I remember when all you wanted was some pizza, I’ll never forget you. Ms. Washington was strong ‘til the very end. Ms. Washington, her light shines bright when walking in.
