“ My sister, affectionately known as Ms. Bird. She was more like a mother than a sister. That was just how she was. She would call me ever week to make sure I was okay. When I answered the phone, she affectionately asks how is my “little snoop rout”. We would talk for hours on the phone. Talking with her was different, she had a way that made you feel so special, in a good way. I enjoyed those conversations so very much. When we would finally end our conversations, we each would say I love you, in our own special way. I would say “love you like a rock” she would respond “love you more”. Now that she has passed it has left a hole in my heart. That hole is only temporary because God promised that we will see each other again. (John 5:28, 29)Sister, Snoodie
