“ Im so sorry for your loss, Jillian. Although, distant as adults, your mom and I were friends since Pre-school. Your grandmother was in-fact Godmother to my first born, son. I wanted to share with you, though, a memory of you and her. I went to her appointment with her the day she found out you were a boy. She was so in-love already with you. She said her life was complete because she now had her girl, Elniqua (who I lovingly called El Niño) and now you. She was soooo happy that day. She loved you both so much. Use that love to help you get through the hard times, sweetheart.

“ A funny memory was when me and her was playing in the snow and we had a snowball fight and she missed three snowballs and when she would always get her hair and nails done she would always take pictures she was beautiful and she has a beautiful soul
