“ To the Prude Family: We take this time to express our personal condolences to the family of Laura Prude. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the family and friends of the family during this hour of great sadness. We also use this time to encourage all grieving hearts to draw true comfort from this promise from God where He tells us about the resurrection blessing that is near at hand. This resurrection promise tells us about How God would in the near future restore life back to those who have fallen asleep in death. This comforting promise is recorded at John 5:28-29. As the text states, God would cause a calling to go forth to those in the grave to stand up in life again. Really these brief words should clearly touch the hearts of all those who are grieving over the loss of a loved one or friend. Yes, the above text really serves as a personal guarantee that the restoring of life to persons like Laura, and to many others would truly take place. And when we have a clear understanding that God is the source of life for all living thing, the restoring of life is surely something that God can do. No God has not forgotten about those who have fallen asleep in death. God wants all to have strong faith in this future promise, so He has taken the time to preserve nine accounts in the Bible that speaks about this grand arrangement that would take place earth wide. Here is just one such example that is recorded at Acts 9:36-42. In the coming days perhaps the family and friends will get a chance to see how these verses apply to Laura, and a great host of others who await their personal awakening from the deep sleep of death. How grateful all can be that God in His great love for takes the time to share a promise that reflects great comfort to us. Really the future is bright not only for us, but also for those who fallen asleep in death. So, please keep this promise of God near your hearts at all times. Remember that when God makes a promise, it becomes reality. For it is impossible for God to lie. (Titus 1:2)
