“ I had the privilege to work with Marion Gant during my time at Blue River Wastewater Treatment Plant. He was a supervisor over mechanical maintenance and someone who left an indelible mark on those who worked with him. He approached every task with skill and precision, ensuring that everything ran smoothly and efficiently. He was the kind of person who commanded respect not just because of his position but because of the way he carried himself. He had a strong moral compass and a sense of fairness that guided his interactions with everyone. But he also had boundaries, and if someone crossed him, they quickly learned that he was not one to be trifled with.

The Wastewater Treatment Plant Workers' Higher Calling

Around the kingly and regal conference table sat the Chairman and the Board. Staff members were presenting their year-end reports. The chief of staff, Gabriel, stood and reported, "Mr. Chairman, the human race is polluting the waters so much that the natural purification cycle cannot keep up. If the pollution continues at this rate, all of mankind and the poor innocent creatures on earth will soon be poisoned by the contaminated waters."

Gabriel continued, "It is a sad indictment against mankind that these waters that were once clean and clear have now become filthy and foul. The waters that were once bubbling, sparkling, rippling, and flowing have now become a nasty, stagnant, foul-smelling cesspool of man's waste." Gabriel requested, "Mr. Chairman, may I blow my horn which will be a signal to our managers to immediately evict all these people who have served as horrible stewards?"

The Chairman of the Board rose from His throne-like chair and said, "I understand what you are saying, Gabriel, but I am going to give them a little more time on their lease. You see, I have a plan to produce wastewater treatment plants to aid in nature's purification process. The designers and builders of these plants will occupy the scene for a while. Nonetheless, the wastewater treatment plant workers will be there from now on and their responsibility will be to maintain and efficiently operate the wastewater treatment plant." So, it became a higher calling: the wastewater treatment plant workers' marching orders are to reclaim the waters by recycling, replenishing, and reviving the polluted waters.
